TURKEY IN ASIA.Typhus Fever.

Consul Masterson at Harput, Turkey, reports that during the summer of 1913 there were persistent reports of the spread of typhus fever among the troops stationed at several posts to the eastward of Harput. Conditions were reported to be most serious among the troops at Mush, Bitlis, and Van, and it was estimated that the disease had caused 300 deaths among them. Typhus fever persisted during the autumn, and during the winter of 1913 and 1914, attacking both the civil and military population. An outbreak occurred in the city of Harput, in a German orphan asylum, during the month of January, 1914, 24 cases with 1 death being notified. Dr. Clarence D. Ussher, an American medical missionary at Van, reported February 23, 1914, that many deaths from typhus fever had occurred at Van among troops, that a larger number of deaths from the disease were estimated to have occurred at Mush, and several hundred at Bitlis, all among troops.
